

ODW Supports Susan G. Komen for the Cure

(Long Beach, CA) Conquest Racing has joined in the battle to end breast cancer. The IndyCar Series team, in collaboration with ODW Logistics, Inc., presented a $10,000 check to the Orange County Affiliate of Susan G. Komen for the Cure. In addition to the donation, Conquest will be raising breast cancer awareness by placing a Susan G. Komen for the Cure decal on the front wing of their #34 Conquest car.

The check was presented in the Conquest paddock area to Lisa Wolter, Executive Director of the Komen Orange County Affiliate by Conquest Team Owner Eric Bachelart, driver Alex Tagliani, ODW Logistics representative Sonja Ness Stockton and Jason Priestley, and Co-owner Rubicon Sports Agency.

“We are incredibly excited about this contribution and are thrilled to have Komen’s presence on the #34 car raising awareness that everyone can help end breast cancer,” said Lisa Wolter. “When generous and unexpected donors like Conquest Racing step forward, they provide much needed funds to help local women who are battling breast cancer.”

“I think everyone knows at least one person that has been affected directly or indirectly by breast cancer or any other type of cancer,” added Eric Bachelart. We want to raise awareness and thanks to the collaboration with ODW Logistics we were able to present them with this donation. Susan G. Komen for the Cure has done such an amazing job at helping in this fight and we’re proud to be associated with them.”

Susan G. Komen for the Cure is the premier nonprofit organization fighting to end breast cancer forever. The Komen Orange County Affiliate is one of the largest affiliates, and its programs work to ensure as many women and men in the community as possible have access to life-saving breast health care.
